Twenty-First International Conference of Europeanists
Washington, D.C., U.S.A. • March 14-16, 2014
Organized by the Council for European Studies (CES)

Resurrections

In the wake of crisis in Europe, bits and pieces of the past are being resurrected as a means of understanding the present and imagining the future. Historical figures are re-evaluated and held out as models, once-dismissed ideologies reappear as possibilities or as bogeymen, myths and symbols from the past crop up in new productions, and old political and economic institutions are revived as alternatives for action. But resurrections are not simply about nostalgia, and they are not just a restoration of the past in unchanged form. Resurrections necessitate fundamental transformations: inserting old things into new contexts, changing their natures and assigning them new meanings and values. For the 21st International Conference of Europeanists, we welcome papers that relate to the theme of “resurrections.” What elements of Europe’s past, and present, are amenable to reanimation? How do they work in contemporary debate and how is their relevance to the present disputed? What is the process through which they are revived and how are they changed as they are brought back to life or combined with new elements?

For its 2014 conference, the Council for European Studies (CES) invites proposals for panels, roundtables, book discussions and individual papers on the study of Europe broadly defined. We encourage proposals in the widest range of disciplines, and, in particular, we welcome panels that combine disciplines, nationalities, and generations. Although it is not mandatory that papers be related to the conference theme, papers that do so are especially welcome. The Committee will accept only two submissions per person and participants are permitted to present in a maximum of two sessions.

We strongly encourage participants to submit their proposals as part of an organized panel. Full panel proposals will be given top priority in the selection process by the Program Committee. Participants may find it useful to connect with like-minded scholars through the growing number of CES networks, links to which can be found here: http://councilforeuropeanstudies.org/research/research-networks

Proposals may be submitted from August 15 to October 1, 2013. Participants will be notified of the Committee’s decisions by December 1, 2013. Information on how to submit will be posted on the CES website and disseminated through its newsletter. To subscribe to the CES newsletter visit: http://councilforeuropeanstudies.org/

Dear CES Community,

As we gather this year to discuss the on-going economic and cultural crises besetting today’s Europe, there are both glimmers of hope and considerable lingering concerns about how the continent will weather the austerity, unemployment, and currency crises of recent years. Some signs point to stabilization in markets and on the political front, while others (in unemployment, most notably) suggest that there is still a great deal more difficulty ahead. However, no matter what the future brings, we will be working to better understand the evolution and impact of the crisis on nations, people, and politics for many years to come.

Indeed, this year’s conference is a direct attempt to advance that effort. Our theme for 2013 is the Eurozone crisis and the constellation of challenges and questions which confront us all. The papers to be delivered during the conference approach these questions from all possible angles, bringing together a rich variety of viewpoints, disciplines, and ideas to help us better understand contemporary European experience and place it in meaningful historical perspective. Across the conference, we explore the idea of crisis as a transformer of Europe—its international and domestic relationships, its populations, its political solvency, and its policies—as we seek to illuminate possible ways forward and emergent solutions to the economic troubles still plaguing so many European nations.

This year’s conference is our second to be held in Europe itself and we are proud to discuss such questions of European interconnectivity in one of the founding capitals of a global Europe—Amsterdam. The Council has received generous funding from the following impressive and diverse list of institutions in Amsterdam and would like to publicly recognize and thank them for their support:

- Amsterdam Institute for Social Science Research
- Duitsland Instituut
- Dynamics of Citizenship and Culture Programme Group
- Geographies of Globalizations (GoG) Programme Group
- Political Economy and Transnational Governance (PETGOV) Programme Group
- Transnational Configurations, Conflict and Governance Programme Group
- Challenges to Democratic Representation Programme Group
- Amsterdam Center for Cultural Heritage and Identity
- Amsterdam Center for Inequality Studies
- Amsterdam Research Center for Gender and Sexuality
- Amsterdam Centre of Globalization Studies
- Center for Urban Studies
- The Amsterdam School of Communication Research
- Institute for Culture and History
- Institute for Migration and Ethnic Studies

Additionally, this conference would not have been possible without the unstinting support of the Municipality of Amsterdam, the Amsterdam University Press, the Meertens Institute, and the Montesquieu Institute.

And last, but most certainly not least, I would like to thank you for your continuing interest and engagement. Without the intellectual curiosity of our wonderful community of scholars and the generosity of our tireless committee members, staff, and volunteers, it would not be possible for the Council to host this 20th International Conference of Europeanists. Thank you.

Warmest regards,

John Bowen

Technology

Every session room is equipped with a PC computer, projector, and projection screen. Session organizers are strongly encouraged to collect all presentations before the conference and then arrive early to pre-load those files. Both these actions will help prevent technological delays during the session.

There is also an official conference app available for download on all Android, Apple, and Blackberry devices. The app includes information about sessions, locations, exhibitors, and other useful information. Information on how to download this app is provided in the conference packet.

Attendees wishing to test their presentations on projecting equipment prior to the start of their sessions are encouraged to arrive early at their session room or to inquire about alternative testing sites by visiting the on-site Registration Desk.

Wi-Fi access is available to all duly registered conference attendees. However, it does require individual account setup. Information about how to access your individual Wi-Fi account should have been provided via email in the weeks directly before the conference. If you did not receive this information, please inquire at the Registration Desk.
The following restaurants have been suggested by members of the Local Organizing Committee as a complimentary resource. None are officially endorsed by the Council for European Studies and no discounts have been negotiated.

Best First Article Prize

Call for Nominations

The Council for European Studies (CES) is calling for nominations for its European Studies First Article Prize Competition. This prize honors the best early work of the next generation of European Studies scholars. Two prizes will be awarded in 2014: one to a scholar working in the Humanities and one to a scholar working in the Social Sciences.

A multi-disciplinary First Article Prize Committee appointed by the Council’s Executive Committee will choose the winner. Each prize winner will receive $500 and public recognition on the Council’s website and in its publications.

Deadlines: The nomination period opens April 25, 2013 and closes February 24, 2014. Prize winners will be announced in May 2014.

For more information about this Call for Nominations, including detailed eligibility guidelines, please visit our website.

Nationalism, Populism and Democracy in Europe

The presentations that comprise this panel analyze links among nationalism, populism, and democracy in the context of the contemporary European economic crisis, questioning assumptions that crisis always creates dangerous populisms.

We might expect to see a broad rise in nationalism and populism, and consequent threats to democracy, but these linkages are by no means obvious or general. Thus, in this fascinating Presidential Plenary, Rogers Brubaker asks why economic crises can and sometimes do provoke nationalism and ethnopolitical conflict, yet do not automatically or uniformly do so. Geneviève Zubrzycki asks how actors in the relatively ethnically and denominationally homogeneous nation-state of Poland are able to construct pluralism and oppose populism, and spotlights contemporary support for secularism and the Jewish revival. Joep Leerssen distinguishes between the long-term, relatively banal remembered romantic nationalism and the capacity of current ethno-populist movements to undermine the state's democratic system, attacked as “elitist-cosmopolitan.” Donatella della Porta examines social movements against austerity to argue that neither nationalism nor populism are per se challenges to democracy, and that some appeals to the people resonate with democratic and deliberative conceptions of democracy. The panel will, we hope, open towards comparative discussions of current political developments.

James Jasper is a leading social movements researcher and author or editor of ten books including The Art of Moral Protest: Culture, Biography and Creativity in Social Movements and Passionate Politics: Emotions and Social Movements. His lecture will launch the first publication from the CES Social Movements Research Network, Cristina Flesher Fominaya and Laurence Cox's Understanding European movements: New social movements, global justice struggles, anti-austerity protest, with chapters from CES network members. The book is the first sustained scholarly engagement with the new wave of European social movement mobilizations, and situates individual movement waves within the longer term of national and international movement histories. Topics range from Italian social centres to the Icelandic "saucepan revolution", from French anti-capitalist peasant movements to the Hungarian and Romanian reception of the global justice movement and from the long history of the European anti-nuclear power movement to collective learning among Spanish Indignados. Jasper's many contributions to the cultural analysis of social movements make this semi-plenary session an intellectual highlight.

The crisis of the Euro lies in the context of a global network of ‘fault lines’ – creditor to debtor, east and west, north and south. It embraces elements of culture, interests, institutions, raising important debates concerning interpretation and explanation in the social sciences. It challenges policy and application of knowledge to public discourse and behavior. It raises issues of democracy and equality, cooperation and justice. This panel offers thoughts concerning these important questions from a European and multidisciplinary perspective.
The Euro Crisis and Questions of Legitimacy

Co-sponsored by the Industrial Relations, Skill Formation & Welfare State Research Network and the European Integration & Global Political Economy Research Network

Tuesday, June 25, 2013 • 2:00 PM - 3:45 PM
Oost-Indisch Huis E0.02 (VOC Room)

This semi-plenary session offers a timely discussion of the euro crisis, EU and national responses to the crisis, and questions arising from concerns about the legitimacy of European Integration. Specific foci of discussion include: the EMU crisis and democratic legitimacy; the crisis and the future of the EU; and the crisis and the welfare state.

Resurrections

In the wake of crisis in Europe, bits and pieces of the past are being resurrected as a means of understanding the present and imagining the future. Historical figures are re-evaluated and held out as models, once-dismissed ideologies reappear as possibilities or as bogeymen, myths and symbols from the past crop up in new productions, and old political and economic institutions are revived as alternatives for action. But resurrections are not simply about nostalgia, and they are not just a restoration of the past in unchanged form. Resurrections necessitate fundamental transformations: inserting old things into new contexts, changing their natures, and assigning them new meanings and values.

Thus, for its 2014 conference the Council for European Studies (CES) invites proposals for panels and papers that relate to the theme of “resurrections.” What elements of Europe’s past, and present, are amenable to reanimation? How do they work in contemporary debate, and how is their relevance to the present disputed? What is the process through which they are revived and how are they changed as they are brought back to life or combined with new elements?
