Migration and Mobility in a Digital Age:
Paradoxes of Connectivity and Belonging

Columbia University, The Heyman Center, 2nd floor common room
Tuesday, April 10, 2018 - Wednesday, April 11, 2018

While smartphones are accessible, affordable, and easy to use, in the realm of the public imaginary the image of the disenfranchised and disconnected migrant remains that of the 'have-nots', and therefore subject to 'high-tech orientalism' (Chun, 2006).

This conference aims to cover a broad range of conflict-related issues on mobility and migration in a digital age through the analysis of virtual communities, social media platforms, securitization, and digital activism.

Organizer: Sandra Ponzanesi (Visiting Professor, Columbia University, Department of English and Comparative Literature).

Keynote Speakers: Arjun Appadurai (Paulette Goddard Professor of Media, Culture, and Communication, New York University); Mirca Madianou (Professor in the Department of Media and Communications, Goldsmiths, University of London).

Where to Go, Whom to Ask

Just arrived? Visit the Registration Desk!

As soon as you arrive at the conference, please check in at the Registration Desk by following the signage on the entry level of the hotel. Our Registration Desk staff will give you a badge, badge holder, and conference program, and will make note of your arrival. Hate standing in line? If you are in Chicago on the afternoon of March 27th, you can skip the crowds by checking in at our Early Registration Desk. Also located in Streeterville Prefunction, the Early Registration Desk will be open from 3:00 PM to 5:00 PM.

Payments & Certificates of Attendance

A CES staff member will be on call throughout the conference to facilitate on-site registrations, finalize payments, and answer administrative and financial questions. Visit us at CES Administrative Services, next to the Registration Desk. To request an e-Certificate of Attendance, simply email certificate@ces-europe.org, and we will send your document to you digitally.

Places to Go Between Sessions

Looking for some tea/coffee and a place to work between sessions? There is a Starbucks Coffee located on the Lobby level of the hotel, which is a great space to meet and grab some refreshments.

Technology

Powerpoint and Projectors

If you have requested Audio/Video capabilities in advance, your session room will be equipped for projection. Session organizers are strongly encouraged to collect all presentations on a USB flash drive before the conference and then to arrive early to pre-load these files. This will help prevent technological delays during the session.

Remember! You must bring your presentation on a flash drive.

WiFi Access

WiFi access will be available in the general conference area of the InterContinental Chicago Hotel.

Printing

If you are in need of printing services, there is a FedEx Office Print & Ship Center onsite, located on the Lobby level of the hotel.

Social Media

Follow along on social media throughout the conference using the official conference hashtag:

Sovereignty is at the crux of current developments in Europe and at the center of political debate – of which the 2016 referendum on Brexit is just one example. The claim to regain national sovereignty vis-à-vis EU policy-making is common to populist movements throughout Europe today, and it currently dominates the rhetoric of the national governments of Hungary and Poland as well. Anxieties about sovereignty are also key to understanding the demands put forward by regional entities such as Scotland, Catalonia, and Lombardy.

These fights for new forms of sovereignty – or the restoration of old ones – are surprising, even bewildering, to those who imagined that the process of European integration would render the concept of sovereignty obsolete. Yet recent developments clearly show that sovereignty again has become a crucial concept in political, social, and cultural fields. It is increasingly invoked not only by regions, nations, and Europe itself, but also by minority populations, marginalized groups, and even individuals as the reason justifying their claims of self-governance, emancipation, or political empowerment.

Recent developments and the material challenges that complicate them – globalization, the digital revolution, mobility – call upon us to reflect on the motives, polities, concepts, and rhetorics of sovereignty more profoundly and, given the complexity of the challenges, to seek fresh approaches that transcend disciplinary boundaries. “Sovereignties in Contention: Nations, Regions and Citizens in Europe” aims to provide an opportunity to bridge the gap between different models for the study of sovereignty: from a governmental and institutional perspective to looking at bottom-up processes, from socio-economic and legal aspects to questions of identity, nationhood, and historical memory.

We particularly welcome proposals in these areas, including cross-thematic and interdisciplinary papers, as well as proposals in other areas relevant to contemporary Europe.

Proposals may be submitted from August 10 to October 8, 2018. Priority will be given to panel submissions. Participants will be notified of the Program Committee’s decision by December 14, 2018.

Information on how to submit proposals will be posted on the CES website and disseminated through its newsletter. To subscribe to the CES newsletter, visit councilforeuropeanstudies.org. For information on how to submit a proposal, please consult the Submission Help page or our newsletter.

Europe and the World: Mobilities, Values & Citizenship

25th International Conference of Europeanists
Chicago, Illinois, U.S.A. / March 28 - 30, 2018

CONFERENCE HIGHLIGHTS

Located at the Intercontinental Chicago Magnificent Mile
Organized by the Council for European Studies
Dear CES Community:

Welcome to Chicago! It is good to be back in the city that has played such an enormous role in the history of CES (even though the timing of this year’s conference, late March, was perhaps a bit optimistic weather-wise). We feel the strength of our history even more now as we are approaching our 50th anniversary in 2020, to be celebrated in Reykjavik!

This year’s conference theme is Europe and the World: Mobilities, Values & Citizenship. In the Call for Proposals we wrote: “The intensification of migrant flows and capital mobility in Europe in an era marked by economic instability and security crises has generated widespread political backlash that poses fundamental threats to Europe’s core institutions. Understanding these developments necessitates the careful study of the wide-ranging and powerful processes of mobility, both from within and outside of Europe, that are reconfiguring identities and citizenship regimes across European nation-states.” Your response to this call showed that we share a deep concern about developments in Europe and the World today. These concerns will be addressed by Craig Calhoun in his Wednesday keynote lecture on “Populism, Nationalism, and the Fate of Democracy.” Vivien Schmidt will discuss Calhoun’s lecture, and we hope that many of you will participate in the debate afterwards. The topics of nationalism, populism, and nativism (and the study of these phenomena) will also take center stage in a series of presidential panels that will be held on Thursday and Friday. In addition to the many sessions dealing with the conference themes, the program has much to offer for those interested in other aspects of the study of Europe.

I would like to thank you for your continuing interest and engagement. Without the intellectual curiosity of our wonderful community of scholars, sponsors, committee members, staff, and volunteers, it would not be possible to host this 25th International Conference of Europeanists. My special thanks go to the co-chairs of this year’s conference, Bart Bonikowski and Carla Santos, for their extraordinary work and support to make this conference possible and, without any doubt, a big success!

Warmest regards,

Jan Willem Duyvendak

Craig Calhoun is President of the Los Angeles-based Berggruen Institute, which works globally to advance knowledge of great transformations shaping the human future. These range from AI and gene-editing to renewed nationalism and weakened international cooperation and indeed the possible transformation of capitalism. Calhoun was previously Director of the London School of Economics and Political Science, where he remains Centennial Professor and before that President of the New York-based Social Science Research Council (SSRC). He was also University Professor of Social Sciences and Director of the Institute for Public Knowledge at NYU. His books have been translated into 18 languages and include Does Capitalism Have a Future? (2013), The Roots of Radicalism (2012), and Nations Matter (2007), which predicted rising nationalist and populist challenges to cosmopolitanism grounded in a highly unequal global economy.

Vivien Schmidt is Jean Monnet Chair of European Integration, Professor of International Relations and Political Science, and Founding Director of the Center for the Study of Europe at Boston University. Professor Schmidt has published widely in European political economy, institutions and democracy, as well as on neo-institutional theory (discursive institutionalism). Recent books include Democracy in Europe: The EU and National Polities (Oxford, 2006), named by the European Parliament as one of the ‘100 Books on Europe to Remember,’ Resilient Liberalism in Europe’s Political Economy (Cambridge, co-edited with M. Thatcher, 2013), and the forthcoming Europe’s Crisis of Legitimacy: Governing by Rules and Ruling by Numbers in the Eurozone (Oxford 2018). Professor Schmidt is a former chair of the European Union Studies Association. She received her B.A. from Bryn Mawr College, her M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Chicago, and attended the Institut d’Etudes Politiques, Paris.
Organized by the Program Committee, this series of special roundtables brings together prominent members and experts in their respective fields to discuss pressing global issues.

Institutions of higher education are—by definition—socially engaged entities, tasked with shaping the minds and future careers of their students. Nevertheless, classic models of pedagogy, particularly in the Humanities, prevail where the curriculum cannot keep up with the growing needs of educating the next generation of public humanists. This panel highlights that students, however, are not stuck in a one-way street but that a liberal arts education opens doors to many professions outside of traditional academia that are still academic in nature.

Euroclio

Studies and Documents

Edited by Michel Dumoulin, Eric Bussière and Antonio Varsori

«Euroclio» is a scientific and editorial project, a network of research institutions and researchers, and an ideas forum. «Euroclio» as an editorial project consists of two aspects: the first concerns studies and documents, the second concerns tools. Both are aimed at making the results of research more accessible, and also at opening up paths through the history of European construction/integration/unification.

Interdisciplinary Studies on Central and Eastern Europe

Edited by Julia Richers, Nicolas Hayoz and Jens Herlth

This series focuses on the political, economic and cultural changes in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. It offers a platform for interdisciplinary research on this multifaceted part of the world. The focus lies mainly on current and recent developments in societies and political systems; but research on cultural and historical backgrounds has its place here, too.
